

GovLoans.gov is a partnership of the federal agencies that manage most of the federal loan programs.

- U.S. Department of Agriculture
- U.S. Department of Education
- U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development
- U.S. Small Business Administration
- U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs

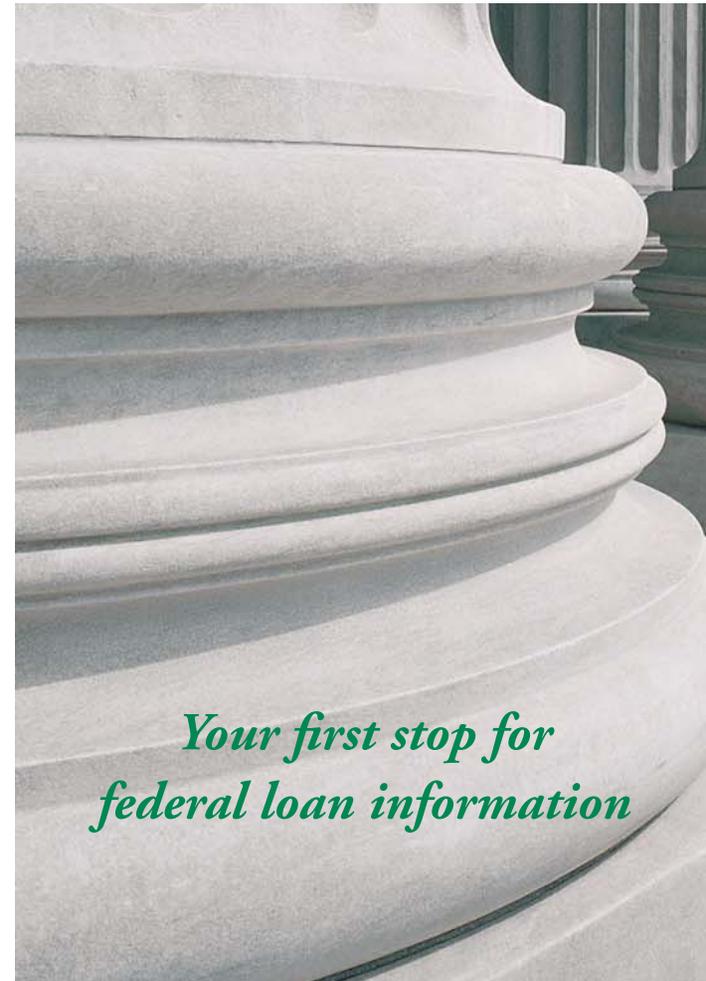

Let GovLoans.gov help you start a small business, buy a home, finance your education, and more!

For more information about GovLoans.gov and the federal loan programs, call 1-800-FED-INFO

Visit www.GovLoans.gov

Brought to you by www.GovBenefits.gov

Your first stop for federal loan information

What is GovLoans.gov?

GovLoans.gov is a Web site designed to help you learn more about federal loans. This site will help you determine which loans may be right for you and where to find more information about them.

Find the right loan for you.

On GovLoans.gov, you can find information about many loan programs sponsored by a variety of federal agencies. GovLoans.gov features information about loans for:

- Housing
- Education
- Agriculture
- Small Businesses
- Veterans
- Disaster Relief

GovLoans.gov features include:

- Program descriptions
- General loan requirements
- Loan resources
- Loan comparison charts
- Frequently asked questions
- Keyword search
- Glossary

GovLoans.gov - Your first stop for federal loan information.

Many Web sites claim to be resources for federal loan information without having any direct connection to the federal loan programs they promote.

GovLoans.gov was created by the government to be your first stop for federal loan information.

GovLoans.gov helps you learn about federal loan programs and the loan process.